Dear Dr. Metelli:

Many thanks for your card. It was good of you to remember us.

I have some good news. Scientific American is planning to run your article on transparency in the April issue. Since they always edit articles rather thoroughly they are now doing that with your article and I suggested they ask Carl to work with them on it.

Since I understand he has already helped out with the article when he was in Italy, the thought occurred to me that it might be nice if he were to be a co-author. I hope you won't think it presumptuous of me to suggest it and please feel free to turn down the idea if it doesn't appeal to you. Needless to say, if the article were authored by Metelli and Zuckerman everyone would realize that the research and original thought was your contribution, not only because you would be senior author but also because the references for the article would include your already published work. This was my idea, not Carl's and I did not discuss it with him. Therefore whatever you decide will have absolutely no effect on his helping out or on his deep respect and affection for you.

If you do like my idea, perhaps you could send a note to Flanagan to that effect.

Do you have any plans to be visiting the States? I would be pleased if you call me by my first name.

Warm regards,

Irvin Rock
Professor of Psychology
