

SMITH COLLEGE, DEPARTMENT OF BOTANY,

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., U. S. A.

February 28-1915

Professor of Botany, University of Padua,
dear Sir: -

For some time I have engaged in writing a history of the teaching of Botany, which I am planning to have illustrated.
As Bonaparte was the first of the teachers of Botany, I am especially anxious to have his portrait. So far I have been unable to find any likeness of him, and I think I have searched pretty thoroughly the books at my command.
I wish to ask you

Write & post. 3. 14. 1915

if there is any portrait of him at the University of Padua, and if there is no portrait, if there is a tablet or monument of any kind erected in his honor. If you know of any tablet, or portrait will you tell me how I can obtain a photograph of the memorial, whatever it is? I shall also be glad to know in what way his memory is honored there at the University.

I shall be deeply indebted to you for any information you may be able to give me, and you any help in securing the desired photograph.

Very truly yours,
Stella G. Streeter
