Prof. Dr. P. A. Saccardo,
Padova, Italy.

Dear Doctor Saccardo:

Both your card and your letter containing the descriptions of fungi were received with much pleasure. I have made a typewritten copy of your ~~MS.~~ manuscript which will be published in Mycologia in the near future. As I am not fluent with the latin text there may be some mistakes in my copy which I hope you will excuse. We will do the best we can to publish the manuscript as you have sent it and ordered.

The printer has instructions to send you 45 copies of the reprint, which kindly accept with my compliments.

I am sorry to say that I have not enough wealth to be able to send you a donation toward the publication of the new volumes of "Syllogue Fungorum". The war did not profit me any, although I was in America. My service in the army was an expence to me in actual money beside the time lost at my office. I should ~~not~~ like however to subscribe to the new volumes and I could send you the subscription money at once which could be used to help publish. Have you any of the older volumes which could be bought? If not too expensive I would also buy these.

We all hope that normal times will soon be established and that "Letters and Arts" will again receive the proper financial support.

Thanking you most heartily for your determinations, I remain, with best wishes to you,

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Brenckle
